

Why the HP ProLiant MicroServer is your ideal first server

- You have multiple versions of files floating around the company and maintaining control of document versions is becoming a challenge – there is no central data storage.
- You need to improve communication and work processes with employees or customers.
- The HP ProLiant MicroServer is a general purpose server that can provide a platform to organise and safeguard your business information, allow effective communication with customers and make the most of your existing office equipment and resources.
- The HP MicroServer is a cost effective starter server for businesses with less than 10 employees and it can take your business to the next level of productivity and efficiency.
- Minimal power consumption for “always on” use that’s easy on your power bill.
- Server grade components give you confidence that your information is protected and available.
